Dennis Behreandt, researcher and publisher of The New American magazine, joins Paul to discuss an eerily prophetic article he wrote in May 2020 in which he warned that mandatory vaccines would be pushed as part of a larger effort to implement universal digital IDs. Part of the plan would include conditioning people to embrace the idea that mandatory vaccines held the keys to societal participation. Dennis names the people and organizations that have been working to bring about this massive societal change. He and Paul also talk about what regular Americans can do to derail these plans.
