

Vote to repeal the United Nations Participation Act

The House of Representatives voted on an amendment to a bill, introduced by Rep. Ron Paul (R-Texas) calling for the repeal of the United Nations Participation Act of 1945. Fifty-four House representatives voted in favor of the measure. Even though the measure did not pass, the numbers were a solid indicator of the accelerated support for the United States immediate withdrawal from the UN.