Family attorney Gregory Hession reveals tales from the seamy underbelly of life spent as a lawyer defending families against the state in juvenile and family court, where their motto is, "Men are abusers, women are victims, the children are ours." Family and juvenile courts have become extensions of a totalitarian state, controlled from afar by federal mandates, and inflamed with an anti-family agenda. The outcome is generally devastating for any family caught in its iron triangle. Speech was given October 8, 2011
