

Pastor Pawel Chojecki Hopes to Rise Against the Tide

Questioning authority, freedom of religion, and the ability to freely speak your mind. Think of all that have died throughout history— individual people sacrificing their entire lives fighting for those rights. It's part of what makes us American. After how far we've come, why have we been allowing these liberties to deteriorate?

And sadly, all around the rest of the world, rights like those mentioned above are much more heavily suppressed.

Take for example Poland. In 1989, Poland declared itself free of communism- supposedly. Odd, because last we checked, a citizen of Poland is not allowed to criticize the president of Poland or the established churches. To do so means fines, jail time, etc.

Pastor Pawel Chojecki, founder and editor-in-chief of Against the Tide, is currently dealing with this very charge. It should go without saying that laws like this are a common communist tactic. Find out how the globalists are trying to silence true anti-communists and what you can do about it.
