

The Farming Community is in Danger | Activate America

The Paris Climate Agreement is just one of many foreign policies that the American people have not voted on, nor have their representatives in Congress voted on it. Yet the Biden administration is implementing its provisions. As a result, there's not only the rising cost of food in the grocery store, there's increasingly empty shelves. Find out more about Biden implementing a CO2 emission plan, its consequences on the farming community, and what we can do about it on this episode of Activate America.
