

Constitutionalism Is Rising. But Many Republicans Still Don't Get It.

For many decades, Republicans and Democrats drove the country in the same leftist direction. Both parties have worked to make Big Government bigger, enlarge an already large deficit, and erode moral values. But over the last few years, the number of Constitutionally-oriented Republicans has been rising. In this episode, Paul discusses with JBS Research Project Manager Christian Gomez and Wisconsin State Representative Ty Bodden the good and bad of today's Republican Party and how to best to hold legislators accountable.

Get the truth behind the news @ thenewamerican.com

Access your federal or state legislator's freedom score @ thefreedomindex.org