Covid-19 tyranny convinced many people that a conspiracy for authoritarian one-world government was in the works. The alarming degree of global collaboration to control every aspect of human behavior reminded many of the decades-long warnings of The John Birch Society, whose members have been talking about this threat for over sixty years. But as more people become convinced of and move forward to oppose one-world-government installation, we must make sure that false and dangerous misconceptions about the conspirators do not take hold and discredit the truth. In this episode, Paul discusses the antisemitism tangent with Dennis Behreandt and Steve Bonta, publisher and executive senior editor of The New American magazine, respectively.
