

The North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) has been around since the early 1990s. Trade has a direct impact on the security of a nation. During World War II America had to rely on itself. Since NAFTA 40,000 factories have been lost. Now our military hardware depends to a large extent on foreign components. We discuss what this means and what could be done to restore American security.

Be sure to share this with your friends and family!